

On Friday, we got up early – we got to swimming a half hour early and went to the playground that's by the pool – and the water (Bedford). I'm loving my lessons in the outdoor pool – mama says I'm doing well. Next was daycare and then taekwondo. We went home, picked up Lila and went to the Public Gardens for icecream – o what fun!

Nana and papa worked Saturday morning / early afternoon – we got to Kingsburg in time for a yummy supper. Nana thought, because it's supposed to rain all weekend that I'd rather stay in the city and go to Hop Skip and Jump. I called her and said “I want to go to Kingsburg!” That made nana and papa very happy. On Sunday, we went to Romkey Pond at Hirtles Beach to practice floating on my back. It was VERY foggy and there was hardly anyone at the beach. Papa came with tea and coffee and I got lots of applause and cheering – especially when I floated on my back by myself! Mama was getting me to relax which they don't do at my lessons. Other than that she's very happy with them.

It started to rain so we hurried back to the car and guess what! Mama found a beautiful crystal and the teeniest toad ever. We took it home and I released it in nana's garden.

After supper mama and I went for a walk – we'd decided to stay over another night and get up early for swimming class at 9. I have 3 more weeks to go!

Nana's wet garden. Romkey Pond - me & mama "back-floating!"
