On Friday, we did not go to TaeKwonDo – after MUCH backing and forthing, deciding, changing my mind, I finally decided for real, even though I had a lot of fun last time I went, to stop TaeKwonDo. Mama had paid for a full year, so I won't be doing any out-of-school classes for another year. I get lots of extras at school though!

On Friday, we delivered our camper to Alderney Park so the artists could pencil in their designs for the next day's 9th Annual Hopscotch Festival!!! There are four pillars of hiphop: dance, art, music, dj. Mama feels like she won the lottery as Fuze and his brother painted our camper!!!

Nana came Saturday – we went to the Big Halifax Market and got all sorts of goodies. In the afternoon we went to Hopscotch! Wow! We saw the guys compete in dance, the big dance troupe practice (to no music!) and then perform (mostly girls “owning their space” as mama said), we saw painters, rappers, Indigenous traditional drummers and dancer . . . I hung out at the playground some of the time too. Great times!
