

Nana came Friday afternoon and we picked her up so she could come to the Bedford Library and meet TeddyBear! Afterwards we bought groceries to make nachos for supper - yummy! We decorated the Charlie Brown tree nana brought from Kingsburg. Mama braided my hair while we watched She-Ra (the original).

On Saturday, we did a Lot of house work then went to the Big Market – we got there late (it closes at 3) and it was nice – not nearly so crowded / chaotic. We listened to a musician singing and playing guitar. Mommy says the guitar will be pretty well obsolete by the time I'm a grown-up.

We got more groceries for tomorrow – we're going into lasagna and chilli production! Nana and I moved the Charlie Brown tree because we kept bumping it and decorations would shower down! Now it's on the glass table in the corner.

Nellie and Denesia came over for a nice visit. Nellie is collecting clothes for a family of refugees – seven kids – who just arrived in Canada – they stepped off the plane in sandals . . . brrrrrrrrrrrr!

Mommy, nana and I came up with 15 questions to ask a police officer friend of El's. Sometimes I feel nervous about the police – El says he's a very nice guy.

I'm doing a Lot of reading – this week I went into the B & C levels . . . I'm even doing some silent reading!

Mobile artworks, Concentration & Happy Giraffe!

